Preparation Works and Safe Cycling in Oxford

Dear Residents,

We hope you've been enjoying the warm weather, or at least managing to stay cool!

The works on-site are progressing well, and we have now completed the foundations and drainage elements for the new buildings. Our work over the next couple of months is to prepare for the underground services that will supply the new buildings around the Univ North Site. We anticipate that within this period, we will also commence works on the existing Fairfield House off Banbury Road. You may have also noticed that our site offices have now been installed to house our delivery team.

On the Staverton Road side of the site, we are preparing the Garden House for its modifications, which require some structural alterations to the existing underground structure. We foresee that these adaptations will take place over the next couple of months before the deconstruction of the current Garden House. Once this is complete, the work for rebuilding will take place, creating the new nursery. We will provide more information about this in future updates.

Please find enclosed a guide to safe and considerate cycling in Oxford, which we hope may be of interest to anyone trying to navigate Oxford's busy roads.
